

Terry McNulty

Terry McNulty is Professor of Management and Corporate Governance and also Director of Research at the University of Liverpool Management School. He was previously at Warwick Business School and Leeds University Business School. His research focuses strategic change, corporate governance and board effectiveness. He has published his research in leading scholarly journals and his research informed recent revisions to the UK Combined Code of Corporate Governance. He has presented at expert panels about boards and corporate governance at the Academy of Management, European Group for Organisational Studies, London Business School. His work on organisational culture and strategic change in UK healthcare published by Oxford University Press (2002) was awarded Medical Management Book of the Year, 2004, by the British Association of Medical Managers.